It is suggested that the derivation of London is from the Celtic Luan, the moon, and a dun, a city on a hill. That it was "the city of the moon" is all the more probable from the tradition that the site of St. Paul's was formerly that of a temple of Diana. The greatest flood ever known on the Mississippi was that of 1811, which swept away the levees, overflowed the entire country, filled up the swamps and remained at high-water mark for months. it was due to the unscientific construction of the levees.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

DECATUR, ILLINOIS, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 16, 1882.

Ozone has an odor similar to a spot that has been struck by lightning. Colored spots on decaying food are caused by animal of vegetable growth. BTAMBERING may be produced by sudden fright suffered during childhood.

STRAWBERRIES contain 5.86 per cent. of their weight of glucose, and hothouse grapes 18.37. WHERE birds fly very little their feathers never acquire, or else soon loose, their distinctive quill-like character.

ALL solid bodies become self-luminous at about the same temperature, beginning to show a dull light at about 1,000

The electrical resistance of pure water uniformly decreases as the temperature rises; at 19 degrees C. it is one-third of what it was at 20 degrees. One may become so accustomed to opium as to be able to drink daily a litre of laudanum, twenty drops of which would be a strong medicinal dose for a non-habituated person.

A HEALTHY frog will remain alive for days after the whole of its blood has been withdrawn from the vessels and replaced by a solution of common salt. A FROZEN plant may be sometimes preserved if plentifully drenched with cold water, because the application of the liquid produces a neutral thaw.

To TEST soaps, dissolve twenty parts in water and mix with five drops of diluted sulphuric acid. The fat rises to the top and the mineral impurities fall to the bottom.

ARSENIC poisoning is not always to be traced to green coloring. One case was due to red wall paper, and the substance is found abundantly in white, gray, blue, mauve, and brown wall papers. Pulmonany consumption seems to be a frequent cause of death among telegraph operators. The cause assigned is the peculiarly strained position the operator is obliged to assume in receiv ng messages. ANTS have been known to build mud stables, where aphides are kept as milch cows. Being fond of a milky fluid which exudes from the two tubes on the bodies of the aphides, they rub the tubes with their antenne to produce a flow of milk.

Copying Drawings.

Tilliet's method of copying drawings in any desired color is thus described in the Polytechnisches Natichlatt: The paper on which the copy is to appear is tirst dipped in a bath consisting of thirty irst dipped in a bath consisting of thirty parts of white soap, thirty parts of alum, forty parts of English glue, ten parts of allumen, two parts of glacial acetic acid, ten parts of aloumen, two parts of glacial acetic acid, ten parts of aloumen, two parts of glacial acetic acid, ten parts of aloumen, two parts of water. It is afterward put into a second bath, which contains fifty parts of burnt umber ground in alcohol, twenty parts of lampblack, ten parts of English glue, and ten parts of bichromate of potash in 500 parts of water. The papers are now sensitive to light, and must therefore be preserved in the dark. In preparing paper to make the positive print, another bath is made just like first one, except that lampblack is substituted for the burnt umber. To obtain colored positives, the black is replaced by some positives, the black is replaced by some red, blue or other pigment.

In making the copy, the drawing to be copied is put in a photographic printing-frame, and the negative paper laid on it, and then exposed in the usual manner. In clear weather an illumination of two minutes will suffice. After the exposure the negative is put in water to develop it, and the drawing will appear in white on a dark ground; in other words, it is a negative or reversed picture. The paper is then dried and a positive made from it by placing it on the glass of a printing-frame, and laying the positive paper upon it and exposing

After waiting two whole days to consider the uniter, the editor of the Recreichus come to the conclusion that he does not desire to answer the question propounded to him by the REPUBLICAN on Monday whether he thinks the people ought to have a chance to vote for or against a con stitutional amendment problems the manufacture and sale of intoxi cating liquous in this state. Instead of unswering the question he enders ors to divert attention from the main issue by charging that the Ript BLT (48 has "declared for prohibition" This is as far from being candid as it is from being time. Probibition i- not the issue of the campaign, the nearest approach thit being the smi ple question as to the right of the people to say through the ballot box whether they want prohibition of not. On this issue the people will divide not upon the probibition line, but upon the mere question of the right of the people to give voice to their sentiments upon any matter of public interest. The Record's assertion that the Brechievs has "declared for prolibition" is niterly without foundation save that it hes pronounced in favor of the right of the people to be benid a right if has always advocated, because it is founded upon the very central idea of free government. Many people who are conscientiously opposed t the principle of prolibitory legislation are nevertheless in favor of giv ing the people an opportunity to express their sentiments upon the right is to assume that they do not know what they want, and that they are therefore incapable of self-gov ernment. The disingenuous editor of the Review is respectfully referred to the action of the Indiana Democrats, who, in their state convention, emphasized their opposition to the proposed amendment, but at the same time recognized in terms the night of the people to vote upon its adoption. Aeroiding to our neighbor's philosophy the Indiana

When the issue of prohibition comes before the people for their decision the Rupublicax will be ready to discuss it, at present the question is simply one which goes to the very voot of the scheme of popular govsament. Shall the people have an opportunity to be heard in this mutter? On this question the Research eax will give forth no uncertain sound: it believes in the competency of the people to decide this question, and so far as its influence goes it shall be exerted in favor of the sacred right of the legal voters of the state to express their opinion on the subject. Is the editor of the Review willing to have the question decided by that tribunal of last resorta popular vote-or will he persist in dodging the issue as he does this morning? Let him answer in terms | man, is endeavoring to aid a large that cannot be misunderstood.

Come now, Mr. Review; let us have a straight-forward answer to the question we have repeated several times—are you in favor of giving the people a chance to vote on the proposed constitutional amendment? It is of no consequence, at present. whether you are in favor of the adoption of the amendment or not-are privilege of purchasing any quantity you in favor of allowing the people to express their views"

THE Review, in a sudden spasm of virtue, calls upon the REPUBLICAN to join in its demand for the enforce ment of the laws. If the editor of stance in which the Regenucy has ever winked at crime, or failed to raise its voice in demunitation of those who violate the law, it will confer a favor upon us and the public by naming the occasion. If the present Democratic city government permits "gambling dens, houses of assignation and prostitution to flourish in our midst," as the Review asserts, the Republican will heartily join with it in the demand for a better enforcement of the law than that given by the administration which received the support of its critical neighbor The Republican will go still farther: if any Republican official—city or county—winks at crime or fails to do his whole duty in bring ing violators of the law to just punishment, it will demand that he be allowed to retire to private life. Will the Review do as much? cross this stream.

THERE is a remedy for the evilarising from the non-enforcement of the law by the Democratic city government, as complained of by the the shore for about two nules. It editor of the Review, which he might has a fine harbor; the village is most try with good effect. If he knows of the existence of gambling dens ... and other places of similar character which our Democratic mayor, our Democratic council, and our Demo cratic chief of police permit to "flourish in our midst," as he alleges, let him like a good citizen go before one of our five Republican justices of the peace, swear ont a warrant, place it in the hands of our Republican sheriff, who will be dead sure to make the arrest, the case will be vigorously prosecuted by our Republican state's attor nev, before a Republican circuit judge, and a conviction will be morally certain to follow, if the evidence is sufficient. definite expression for any one accustomed to sleep between sheets and blankets and on snowy pillows. In fact, you do not "go" to bed at all, but the bed, such as it is, simply "comes" to you; and the style of preparing for the night is about the same wherever you It is said that there is a certain fixed amount of cruely in every society, and that the only difference is the form in which it is expressed. Where people, for example, who are kind to animals, are frequently unkind, or at least not sympathetic, with those of their own kind. The venerable Henry Bergh, of New York, is charged with being willing to sacrifice the health and comfort of his night is about the same wherever you go. First, a cotton stuffed mat is laid go. First, a cotton stuffed mat is laid anywhere upon the floor, and a block or roll is placed at one end to rest (?) your head upon. Then you lie down, and a cotton stuffed quilt is thrown over you. This quilt is like a Jap dress on a big scale, with large and heavily stuffed sleeves, which flap over like wings. But the difficulty is that these capacious sleeves, with all the rest of the bedding, contain unnumbered legions of voracious to sacrifice the health and comfort of his own species to that of the quadrupeds he champions. The philanthropist that devotes his time to alleviating the wrongs of mankind is often accused of neglecting of mankind is often accused of neglecting his family and allowing them to suffer, while the cold, selfish, cross, grasping, hard moneymaking man of the world, is at home an affectionate husband and a tender father. Whether this be true or not, it is in a degree confirmed by the apparent advance in humanity already made at Vale College. There have contain unnumbered legions of voracious contain unnumbered legions of voracious fleas hid away in recesses known only to themselves, but which only wait till you get fairly nestled in sleep, when they begin their onslaught on their defenseless and helpless victims. Awakened by the merciless havot they are making upon you, it is in vain that you roll and toss and shake your clothes till you are wearied out. That only increases the vigor with which they renew the battle, and you may spend hours in the faint glare of the primitive oil lantern, which is set in one corner of the room, and apparent advance in humanity already apparent advance in humanity already made at Yale College. There have been years in the history of that instintion when "hazing" was practiced. But that has been abandoned of late. Instead of that Mr. Wm. M. Evarts' son has introduced badger hunting—he having procured a badger for that purpose—and rat-killing. He has a terrier which is "death on rats," and the other day having procured a crateful of the animals from New York, he left them loose in the college yard. His dog killed twenty-seven rats in six minutes, and the members of the sophomore class abanis set in one corner of the room, and is set in one corner of the room, and strive to rid yourself of the tiny tigers that are devouring you; it is all to no purpose, and you sink down at last asleep. But you are soon awakened again, only to undergo the same tribulation, and the hours of the night pass away as you race up and down the next. away as you pace up and down the nar-row limits of the room listening to the snoring of the dozen or more of the members of the sophomore class abandoned their recitations to witness the tough hided sleepers who surround you, and peep through the sliding shutters of the house to see if the day is breaking or not. You cannot lie down again—for slaughter.

Now this is an advance on "hazing" and shows progress. the floor is crawling with the creatures you dread—and you cannot sit down, (for there is nothing to sit upon,) and such a thing as a chair was never heard

The Good Dish Humans Make. The cannibals have long since decided

The cannibats have long since decided that in the delicacy of both flavor and texture, "long pig" is far superior to "short pig," and when asked how he liked children Charles Lamb said he liked them "boiled." It is well known that tigers and lions prefer human flesh to all other and will heave off eating catto all other, and will leave off eating cattle and sheep to pull down a man. A curious confirmation of this is the prefcurious communation of this is the preference which tigers show to monkeys, which, according to Darwin, are but a stage bólow the human race. Tigers and leopards are very fond of them, and for the sake of the delicacy, will be long hours under the trees waiting for them to going down. The monkeys will them to come down. The monkeys will shake the branches and throw sticks down at them until by worrying and pestering them they succeed in driving the epicures away.
